I ICA TO HIPST PRINCIPLES

The voice of the man who thinks t possible The force of the man who thinks it possible to enforce temperance by "taking a voe?" is beard once more in the land. As THE URLED-KIAN believes in free speech it gives him them my but at the same time it knows well that he does not speak for the masses of the carm stand practical temperance people of the country. They are too well aware that the sest bulwark of temperance is not probibilion by statute, but he propagation and growth of temperance sent tunents and ten perance principles, which he below all possible temperance legisla ion

Now that the thurry of the election is over it is prolable that men's made are becoming dis-posed again to discuss this subject on a reasonable cases It is lard, undoubtedly, for the man who thinks it possible to destroy the fliquid traffic by legal enactment, while the demand for reants by legal enactment, while the despand for highors continues without abatement, to get beyond the camp meeting methods of exhortation in his effort; to discuss the question and yet those methods are wholly irrelevant, and indeed worse than useless. This is a very practical question, and exhortations for "the home and the family," for "tood and moral ty," and that sort of thing, do not advance the cause a single step. We are never to expect a result in the absence of the conditions necessary to true it about. The one way lone necessary to bring it about. The one way to duninish the h por traffic and then to extinguish it is to duninish the demand for liquous and keep up the pressure in this direction till the demand is extinguished. When nobody wants to buy and drink, there will be nobody to make and sell. And conversely, so long as there are considerable numbers who want to buy and ank, there wal be persons enough to make and sell to supply the demand, law or no law The statement eight to be made and repeated till is passes into the currency of a provert, that law, to be effective, must conform to public opinion, and that public opinion is never the opinion; and tast public opinion is never the creature of law Yet this principle is universally forgotten in the inistaken and abortive electron to destroy the liquor traffic by legal enactment, in the face of a demand for liquors that will always create sources of supply. Again and again it is argued that since the law forbids theft and murder, makes these acts crimes and punishes them with just severity, the law can also forbid liquor selling, make it a crime, and enforce penalties for ing, make it a crime, and enforce penalties for its violation. But murder and theft are crines per se, while liquor selling is not, there is no public opinion that sustains theft and murder, while there is a public opinion that permits liquor selling,—that is, in most communities. It is not the liquor sellers, but the liquor dribkors, who make this opinion. The sellers are called into existence by a demand from the buyers. Pretty much all effort for temperance reform begins, therefore, at the wrong end. The onip possible way of diminishing the sale of liquors is by reduction of the number of buyers, and its useless to expect to be not of the sellers while is useless to expect to be rid of the sellers while perance legislation of the prohibitory sort never has been and never can be enforced except in communities where there is little, or no demand for liquors, and where consequently there is no need of any prohibitory laws.

These facts are fundamental So obvious and so true are they that, to one who looks at this age true are they that, to one who looks at this question without sinking his judgment in his just detestation of the evils of the liquor traffic, it is a constant wonder that they are overlooked. Yet the main part of temperance effort is devicted to the scheene of trying to stop the seller, hasked of trying to stop the buyer. But it is apparent that so lung is there are considerable numbers who want to buy, just so long will there be schers enough to supply the demand. The buyer is the cause, the seller is the effect, and under these circumstances we involtas well and under these circumstances we implifies well and under these circumstances we might as wentry to cure a city of fills diseases by heating the prevalent fevers and neglecting the conditions producing them, as to undertake to stop the cylls of the liquor traffic by concentrating our main efforts upon the traffic itself and neglections. ing the source and cause of it. But how is the demand for strong drink to be dimin shed? This is the real temperance problem. It rests with those who have the control and training of youth, with those who can ert personal and social influence to make drunk-enness, and even tippling, disreputable with those who by precept, example or any kind of affinence, can discountenance the habit of drink and help to put it under the ban. Temperance reform is largely a social movement. In the times of our fathers there could be no gathering of a social nature where the jug did not go ing of a sound manner of the neighbors round. It was present whenever the neighbors assembled to erect the log cahin, to roll the logs in the cleaning, or to strip the coin at the end of the harvest. It was present on "muster" days, and was not kept in the camp-neeting. concealment even at the camp-neeting phable entertainment of a friend included offer of a dram. It was rare to find a man who totally refused, and such an one was looked on as a soft, babyish fellow—a milkepp. From all the there has been great change. The well nigh universal custom of fly years ago is now in almost universal discredit. From a vast majority of the homes of the land liquors are entirely banushed It is kept out of the sight of children and they are taught to dotest and avoid it Inand they are taught to dotest and avoid it. In-creasing numbers of young women are taught to discontenance and reject young men whose temperance principles, and practice too, are not entirely clear. In all this lies the hope of real

This, or something like this, The Orliovian ins, or something like this, THE URLOSIAN frequently tried to say and to enforce with such earnestness as it could bring to hear on the subject. Yet it is well aware that this view and subject ref it is were aware that this view is not attractive to those who want to reach great results in a hurry, and think they can reach them through a few eloquent or horizatory phrases, by calling for a vote, or by "standing up to be counted." As easily, by taking thought, can they add a cubit to their stature | Of late prohibition by constitutional decrees is can they add a cubit to their stature:

Of late prohibition by constitutional decree is the scheme most in vegue, but the notion that constitutional prohibition is going to "settle" this question is chimerical and quixous. No constitution can enforce itself. There must be consumment can efforce itself. There must be enforcing statutes, and any legislature may repeal these, and, not matter how stringent the constitution may be, leave the Runor traffic wholy free. No constitutional amendment can compel legislature action. The whole subject rests, so far as any positive action is concerned, with the legislature, and there it will rest. It with the legislature, and there it will rest. It cannot be taken out of politics by a constitutional amendment any more than maluriz can be taken out of the atmosphere by constitutional amendment. The attempt to settle it once for all and have it out of the way is likened by a keen to the scheme of "getting religion once for ell."
This fight with intemperance, says the same writer, is not a three months' campaign, nor even a thirty years' war, it will not be fought cut for many generations, and any resort to shifty expedients of to factitious advantages is folly. As your constitutional amendment will depend for its enforcement on statutory enactment, so the enforcement of your statutory en-sciment will depend on the constables, the policemen, the justices elected by the community, and these officials are not going to annoy or molest the numerous body of sellers and drings ers who have so much power in choosing their Thus, by another road, we get back to the orige-inal position that the only effective way of dealing with the drink problem is to reduce the army of d inhers. Three public opinion is not the creature of legislation, but since legislation (if effective) must follow public opinion, and c chinical is a growth deper hing on social, moral, religious and domestic influence and even on physical conditions and surroun ings, it ought to be apparent where the real roots of this problem he Temperanos is a virtue and like every other virtue it must have its growth from within. It cannot be enforced from without. Intemperance is one of the swis-that law cannot cure, and the reason is that law doesn't make man. On the contrary, man make inaw, yet that law is nething—it is sumfly ignored or disregarded—when it does not accord with public opinion, that is, when it does not agree with the interest, washes, feelings and wants of a large part of the community false an example in nother direction. In many places $5 withted has pub ic or inion become, through the corrupions of polities, that it is doubtful if the penalty for bribery in electrons could be enforced in any we had a probability injury law. Bose any one seriously suppose there would be the east pos-sibility of entaring it in Portland. In High tax-ation is the 1 most limit of restriction that such work for all temperance reformers. Let them strive constantly to make drunking less respectable, to bring personal influence and social ressure against it, to combine against it the forces of education, morality and religion. Explosions of impulence in one direction, or taunts a mother, will contribute nothing to the solution of the question. The letter from Corval is, signed "tope of the Fools' who have Eulisted for the War," we print with great willingness, debning it im-portant to circulate a composition which so fully hes behind the suprosition that great things have been done for the advancement of temper ance by the costing of certain votes for St. John in the lase presidential election. When all this levit, but longe, plurese mongering and assorted smartness had had its day, the problem of temperance reform wit still be found resting on the old facts and the old principles. It is the buyers, et us repeat, who support the liquor traffic Earnest and continuous effor, from generation to genera on, to duntish the num-ber of buyers will sear fruit, expenditure of wrath on the calters is enfort wasled. The whole ph losophy of .emperance reform is symmed up in two wirds—dunin in the demand

INDIAN AFFAIRS.

In submutu g his third and last unnual report to the president Secretary Teller is entitled to the feeling of satisfaction which he expresses in the progress it at has been made in the settlement of the Indian justion during his administration of the interior department. He has excelled at least all of his late predecessors in that department in the practical agacty he has displayed in managing the Indian affairs. His residence for many years within the limits of the Indian country has qualified him to form first hand opinious in a | the various complications of this problem and these op nions he has crystalized into lines of policy which have only 'q be car ried out in order "to forever set at rest the ques-tion as to wha shall be done with the Indiana." In his report a year ago he gave it as his opinion that it is quite possible, with wise and judicious treatment of the Indam question to prevent the recurrence of hostilities between the Indian and his white neighbor that has marked nearly every year of our history." It will afford the past year has been one of peace among the Indians at d that no outbreaks have meneral All the tribes are at 10 100 with each other and with their wit to neighbors."

This state o' peace among the Indians is of course largely due to the intersection of ther course largely due to the intersection of their country by lines of railway, which enable the settler to give permanency to the civilization which the army has initiated. But without wise direction at Washington, the results upon which the secretary now felic takes the country would have been slow and difficult, with the encroachments upon their hunting grounds, the Indans, if left to themselves would ine itality suffer more from the wretched could fur of a vivere life until it would destroy condition of strage life, until it would destroy their race. It has been the great object of Mr. Teller to make the Indian self-supporting treat end unspenent has been given to the system of education which was manguarted by his preferessors, while his has emproved upon the system by the promisence which he has given to metruction in manual labor. This is the to instruction in manual latter. This is the in-tratestratems for the civilization of the Indian, and the secretary is not far out of the way in claiming the tribit is the only agency for that purpose. The great value of these schools is aircady established and it is only necessary to multiply their number, so as to include all the Indian chairer of school age, to forever set at rest the question as to what shall be due with the Indians? An housest compliance on the part of the government with the conditions of) art of the government with the conditions of the treatise with the various tribes concerning schools, will a isstantially provide all the schools required for it ceducal out all the children of school age whose after lance we can hope to se

In their support, It ought to be the pursuary object of our cealings with the Incian to make him dependent on himself, and not on the government, throw h on his own resources, with such ald only as is occasionally reeded and as honesty and good futh on our part demands."

It is bardly necessary to say that "all educated A late decision of the supreme court, which we have published, shows that Indians cannot become citizens simply by abandoning their ribal relations and setting lown among white com-numities to the habits of crulized life. It is necessary for congress to provide for their naturalization or for their becoming citzens through some other process specially adapted to their case. The secretary suggests "that those who shall complete the regular course at the several manual labor schools be given cliuzenship, without teir incurring the risk of a forfer ure of their interest to either tribal lands or fribal funds."

Another suggestion of practical interest to the people of this state relates to the punishment of erlines on Indian reservations. No court new has unrediction in capital cases when th has unradiction in cap tal cases when the crime was committed on the reservation by one Ir dian against another. Minor offenses may be pun-ished through the agency of the "court of In-dian offersea," but, eage Mr. Teller, "it will hardly do to leave the punishment of the crime of marder to a tribugal that ex-ists only by the consent of the Indians of the reservation. If the murderer is left to bu pun-ished exercising to the adventure of the Indians. reservation. It the murderer is ten to be pun-ished according to the od Indian custom, it be-comes the duty of the next of kin to avonge the detth of his relative by either killing the mur-deter or some one of his kinsings. He there-fore concludes that "the laws of the state or ter-Ditty wherein the reservation is situated or to be extended over the reservation, and the In-dians should be compelled to obey such laws and be allowed to claim the protection thereof? Much disestisfaction has been expressed by the people in bastern Oregon with the results of trains in the United States court, in this city, of offences coincitied by Indians against while people, and rece zerosa. The expense an I great inconvenience of bringing wi nesses such tance is of uself a reason for the change recommended by the secretary But the appeal effect upon the In hang and Leir white no choors of the knowledge that they are both amenable to the same laws, and thu their offenses will be tried by a 'ury of the v cmage," could not be otherwise it an salutary

In conclusion, the serretary makes the encouraging satement that and more in the bis-tory of our intercourse with the Indians have they slown a greater desire to apandou their they shown a greater desire to an andon their saving the fibra during the last year. They have well med (with but few exceptions) all the agencies provided for their benjeht, and have shown a commenciable disposition to misport themselves to the new order of things. They express not andy a desire for improvement, but the determination to improve. They give on their children to go to distant parts of the country, to sections unknown to them, in order that and become acquainted with the ways of evilued people. A great rumber in the varies at these have made in effort to contribute something to the support of themselves and families. They are asking for stock cattle, and declare They are asking for stock cattle, and declare their willingness to take care of them if they are formished, and very generally profess a willingness to do whatever, it required of them, it order that they may become self-supporting. But this desire to adopt civilization imposes upon the government the greater responsibility for their steadfast adhesion to this dawning purpose. Like all uneducated people, they are unstable in their companys and resolves, and unstable in their opinions and resolves, and need tauch encouragem at to enable from to keep it the way that they profess an earles

London, Dec. 2.—Laborais generally approve of the redistribution bill. Leonard H. Courtney, advanced liberal from Listerri, had offered to cladistone his resignation as secretary of the treasury, in consequence of the omission in the redistribution bill of the principle of minority representation. Lourney, with Labouchire, Sir John Lubbock, Joseph Cowen and other radicals, formed an opposition strong in talent, but weak numerically. The Irish party are satisfied there has been no reduction in tis membership, but its members are afraid the provision in the bill abolishing borough representation under a population of 1.5,000, will result in unseating one-half the Parnellites. Parnell feels confident the result of non-grouping will strengthen his following, but before giving the bill his support will held a conference with members of his party. The tories give the bill a cool adhesion, but will fight details in the committees.

LONDON, Dec 1—The Mark Lang Express on its weekly review of the grain trade, says The winity weather during the past week has strangthened the wheat market, and more money is asked by holders. Prices have also inproved in the provinces. Sales of English wheat during the past week were 6,985 quarters at 406 66 per quarter, against 73,461 quarters at 406 66 per quarter for the convesponding week last year. Foreign wheat is no better inquiry American spring and red wheats have generally advanced in Liverpool In the off coast trade the market is firmer Sellers are asking higher prices, but puyers decline to respond. Twelve cargoes has arrived two were sold, two withcrawn and higher remained. Twelve off coast cargoes are due. In the trade for cargoes on passage, or for ahipment, the tone of the market is active. Flour is dull and slow Sales of muze are scarce and the market is against buyers and steady. Onto the higher Hawitt Mentioned As Lowett Las Successor MARK LANE BLVIEW

The revolutions in Panama, Cucdinamarca and Saniander have terminated. The general government has mortgaged the mint in Bogota to raise $50,000 (arios O'Leary has written to the secretary of the treasury from London, stating that however advantageous may be the proposals Colombia may make for a loan, or for the construction of railroads or other 1 ublic works, it will be impossible to obtain money in England until satisfactory arrangements have been reached with its former creditors.

Another revolution is in progress in Ecuajor deneral Alfaro left here the 16th ult., with about 2006 Ecuadoriun exiles, in the steamsnip Alqueta, purchased the day previous. The steamer went to Hemeralda, where General Alfaro left here the 16th ult., with about 2006 Ecuadoriun exiles, in the steamsnip Alqueta, purchased the day previous. The steamer went to Hemeralda, where General Alfaro left here in the fall that is cannon and Galling guns are of the latest patients. He is beloved throughout the republic, and probably he will obtain the presidency at the cost of very little bloodshed. Alfara is leader of the liberal party, and undoubted yif he is successful, the church and state will at once be separated, and religious toleration established, for the first time in the history of the republic. The Alajueta was attacked in Colombian waters by the Ecuadorian man-of-war Santa Luck, but repelied the attack.

The United States steamer Shouandoah has anlied from Callao for Mollendo, Peru to inquire mits facis connected with one of Capare's arbitrary acts. An American ressel carried a carry of gunno from Huache to Mollendo. The gunno, which had been sold by the kriesias government, was security for freigh, which had to be guano as milional property, and ordered its sale on this account. IN THE CHARBER OF DEPUTIES

PARE. Dec. I —The chamber of pleputies, 72 to 185, carried an amendment placing senators on the same footing as deputies regarding incompatibility between membership in parliament and the holding of other public office. Another amendment was adopted, 250 to 246, providing for the election of senators by universal suffrage. Renaulte Molere, secretary of the chamber and reporter of the commuttee, tendered his resignation as reporter, because the ministers opposed both unendments. The debate was adjourned till Thursday. A special cabinet council will be held at the Paliace Elysee to-morrow, to consider what course is advasable in view of this defeat of the government. IN THE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES
